Polska nowa matura	W=JP + JN + PD 1%=1 point JP: the result obtained in the written examination in Polish language at the basic level; JN: the result obtained in the written examination in a modern foreign language at the basic level; PD: The result obtained in the written examination in an additional subject, taken at an advanced or bilingual level. In the case when the exam of an additional subject was taken at the basic level (pp), its result is multiplied by 0.5. When determining the results, the more favourable score obtained by a candidate in the secondary school exit examination is selected. List of additional subjects included in the admissions algorithm for score calculation: • Philosophy; • Geography; • History; • Informatucs; • Latin language and ancient culture; • Polish language; • Mathematics; • Social studies; • A modern foreign language(at an advanced or bilingual level): English, German, French, Spanish, Russian, Italian; • Ethnic minority language: Lemko language; • National minority language: Belarusian, Lithuanian, German, Ukrainian; • Regional language: Kashubian language.
Polska stara matura	W=JP+PD JP: the result obtained in the written examination in Polish language; PD: the result obtained in the written examination in an additional subject. The method of calculating grades obtained in the matriculation examination is adapted to the grading system for candidates who have passed the matriculation examination and is determined by the general rules adopted by the University.

The International Baccalaureate	W=JO + PD JO: the score obtained in the written examination in the candidate's native language (language A); PD: the result obtained in the written examination in a subject from other groups of subjects. Groups of additional subjects included in the admissions algorithm for calculating the score: • language B; • individuals and societis; • experimental sciences; • mathematics; • the arts. The method of calculating grades obtained in the International Baccalaureate is adapted to the grading system for candidates who have passed the matriculation examination and is determined by the general rules adopted by the University
The European Baccalaureate	W=JN+PD JN: the result obtained in the written examination in a modern foreign language; PD: the result obtained in the written examination in an additional subject. The method of calculating grades obtained in the European Baccalaureate is adapted to the grading system for candidates who have passed the matriculation examination and is determined by the general rules adopted by the University foreign a certificate and another documnet	W=JN+ PD JN: the result obtained from the written examination in the language in which the baccalaureate is obtained (modern foreign language); PD: the result obtained in the written examination in an additional subject. The method of calculating grades obtained in the another Baccalaureate is adapted to the grading system for candidates who have passed the matriculation examination and is determined by the general rules adopted by the University.